DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Claim 6 recites the limitation "the customer" in line 5. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Appropriate corrections are required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) do not apply to the examination of this application as the application being examined was not (1) filed on or after November 29, 2000, or (2) voluntarily published under 35 U.S.C. 122(b). Therefore, this application is examined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

5. Claims 1-2, 5, 10-11 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Wiser et al. ("Wiser", US 6,385,596).

As per claim 1, Wiser teaches a method for providing encoded media content over a network, the method comprising the computer-implemented steps of:

receiving over the network a first request to encode a media program file in one or more encoding formats, wherein the first request is received from an end-user client that is connected to the network (col.10, lines 51-55);

in response to receiving the first request, servicing the first request by automatically generating one or more encoded media files by encoding the media program in the one or more encoding formats (col.7, lines 4-14), and after encoding the media program in the one or more encoding formats, automatically hosting the one or more encoded media files on a hosting server (col.9, lines 39-45) in response to receiving from the end-user client a second request to host the one or more encoded media files, wherein the hosting server is configured to allow selective access to the one or more encoded media files over the network (col.9, lines 46-47).

As per claim 2, Wiser teaches the method wherein the selective access includes access given to the end-user client and which allows the end-user client to manipulate the one or more encoded media files (col.27, lines 1-4).

As per claim 5, Wiser teaches the method wherein the selective access includes access given to an end-user client of the network and which allows the end-user client to receive a publication of at least one of the one or more encoded media files in response to a request by the end-user client to receive the publication (col.11, lines 51-56).

Claims 10-11 and 14 are similar in scope to claims 1-2 and 5 respectively, and are therefore rejected under similar rationale.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claims 3-4 and 12-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wiser et al. ("Wiser", US 6,385,596).

As per claim 3, Wiser teaches the organization of encoded media files into lists. However, Wiser does not specifically disclose the method allowing an end-user to create a tree structure directory for organizing the encoded media files. Official Notice is given that using a tree structure directory to organize files is well known in the art. It would have been obvious to an artisan at the time of the invention to include the method of organizing the files into a tree structure directory with Wiser's method as a matter of organization preference and an improved method of locating files efficiently.

As per claim 4, Wiser teaches the step of providing real-time reporting of statistics on the one or more encoded media files that are hosted at the hosting server (col.11, lines 51-56). Furthermore, Wiser suggests the end-user to be able to manage the media files (col.27, lines 3-4). However, Wiser fails to teach the step of allowing an end-user through entering commands at the end-user client to dynamically determine whether to remove the one or more encoded media files from publication. Official Notice is given that file management to include operations to add/remove is well known in the art. It would have been obvious to an artisan at the time of the invention to include the removal operation with Wiser's method so that the end-user is able to remove files that are no longer of interest thereby being cost effective.

Claims 12-13 are similar in scope to claims 3-4 respectively, and are therefore rejected under similar rationale.

8. Claims 6 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wiser et al. ("Wiser", US 6,385,596) in view of Sauerwine (US 5,421,620).

As per claim 6, Wiser teaches the step of causing a user interface to be displayed at the end-user client, wherein the user interface allows entry of encoding requests and allows uploading of the media program from the customer client to a server over the network (col.20, lines 65-67; col.21, lines 1-2). However, Wiser fails to teach the step of providing to the end-user an encoding request form through the user interface, wherein the encoding request form includes a mailing bar code. Sauerwine teaches a method of creating a mailer business form having a mailing bar code (fig.1, mailing bar code 136). It would have been obvious to an artisan at the time of the invention to include Sauerwine's teaching with Wiser's method in order to provide the option of mailing the media file associated with a bar code for tracking the file.

Claim 15 is similar in scope to claim 6, and is therefore rejected under similar rationale.

9. Claims 7-8 and 16-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wiser et al. ("Wiser", US 6,385,596) in view of Vigneaux et al. ("Vigneaux", US 5,852,435).

As per claims 7-8, although Wiser teaches the control of managing files, Wiser fails to teach the control of the design of the files. Vigneaux teaches a multimedia editing system providing automated online design control, wherein the design control comprises the control of one or more of sequencing of segments of the one or more encoded media files; selection of music for each segment of the one or more encoded media files; and alteration of the segments of the one or more encoded media files, wherein the segments of the one or more encoded media files comprise two or more slides, frames, or video clips (col.9, lines 1-6). It would have been obvious to an artisan at the time of the invention to include Vigneaux's teaching with Wiser's method in order to allow the user to arrange the media file to the user's viewing preference.

Claims 16-17 are similar in scope to claims 7-8 respectively, and are therefore rejected under similar rationale.

10. Claims 9 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wiser et al. ("Wiser", US 6,385,596) in view of Candelore (US 6,057,872).

As per claim 9, Wiser teaches the purchasing of media files. However, Wiser fails to teach the purchasing of credits for each transaction. Candelore teaches a credit purchasing system, wherein credits are purchased by an end-user; a predetermined number of credits are associated with each e-commerce transaction associated with the comprehensive remote servicing of the media program; and pricing of credits are inversely proportionate to a number of credits purchased (col.1, lines 65-67; col.9, lines 10-15). It would have been obvious to an artisan at the time of the invention to include Candelore's teaching with Wiser's method in order to provide a method of purchasing media files whereby continuous users are provided a discount for their loyalty to the service thereby providing incentive for users to purchase many credits.

Claim 18 is similar in scope to claim 9, and is therefore rejected under similar rationale.

Conclusion

11. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

- Sparks et al. (US 6,298,385) teaches a method of changing the format of multimedia files being transmitted over a network.
- Hoffert et al. (US 6,374,260) teaches a method of uploading media files and transcoding the files from one format to another.
